

The movie we watched today was called "Darr" and it was released in 1993. It is a Hindi film and the language spoken in the movie is predominantly Hindi with some English dialogues. It has attracted considerable attention and was remade into Tamil and Telugu films, as well as an American adaptation of Indo-Canadian origin that stars Jimmy Shergill, Sarah Taylor, Yannick Bisson, Anupam Kher, Shenaz Treasurywala. The most interesting thing about this magnificent piece is its story. There are three friends: Jugnu (Jimmy Shergill), Jai (Yannick Bisson) and Guddu (Jude Release). All three are distinct characters. Jugnu is the head of the trio, so he is always in control of all situations. He has a girlfriend called Anu (Shenaz Treasurywala). Guddu is very carefree and doesn't like to go to school. His mother often refuses to buy him his books and other necessary materials because she says that education isn't important for him. Jai is not as smart as the two friends, but he is very good at cooking. He has a girlfriend called Preet (Amia Pathak). All three friends live with their grandparents in the same locality. They are all one family. Guddu's mother is a widow and Jai's grandparents are deaf and mute. They all live together in Jai's house, which was given to them by way of charity. The movie starts with the boys buying a car with the money they have saved up. Jai starts cooking for them for free after school hours. He gives the food to his grandparents because they are still young at heart and don't feel like eating curd anymore after having lived for so many years. Jugnu hires a girl to give him massages in his house during the day. He doesn't like to see her in his house anymore. Guddu's mother likes Jai and is always asking him about his girlfriends. She wants Jai to get married to her daughter, but Jai doesn't want to leave the group. She also is unhappy with Jugnu and everything is getting worse and worse for Guddu's mother and the rest of the family because Guddu's grandfather has dementia and loves Preet. One day, when Preet goes shopping, she is surrounded by bad people who threaten her life. Jai saves her. She tells her father about the incident. Her father fixes Preet's marriage because he thinks that Jai is a bad boy. Jai decides to get married to Preet, but after their wedding night, he decides to take care of his grandparents. Jai's maternal grandmother doesn't want Preet in the family anymore, so she leaves for another place with her husband. Guddu starts studying in college but under the pressure of his mother, he starts going home late at night and going to school later than everyone else.
